*Bamboo: the eco-friendly
alternative*

■ Chapels on Whatley

Chapels on Whatley is delighted to launch its new eco-friendly 'Bamboo' range of artefacts, crafted in a village out of Hanoi, Vietnam.

The Bamboo range consists of vases, bowls, platters, bird cages, trays, majong and domino sets and tea light holders, all created in the method made famous by hundreds of years of Vietnamese craftsmanship.

Designs are exclusive to the brand and inspired by Perth resident Kathy Thomas. The heavily lacquered surfaces in rich colours of red, blues, greens, aqua and raw bamboo, reflect the culture of Vietnam.

Bamboo is an ideal product range, creating interest and excitement in a material that is renewable and eco responsible. This is done with original design innovation and imagination coupled with socially responsible business practices.

Chapels on Whatley works directly with its producers to ensure quality products and healthy working conditions, whilst providing opportunities for the small group of village craftsmen.

A species of grass, bamboo is the perfect non-timber alternative.

Of the more than 1200 varieties, Moso Bamboo is Chapels' favoured resource for its versatility, renewability and beauty.

The Bamboo range can be seen at 196 Whatley Cres (opposite the Maylands train station), 7 days a week from 10am-5pm.
